All is not the chaos that it seems. The students are organized as they register for the coming fall semester at WTSU. Registration at WT took place Friday and Saturday.

Down 254 Saturday

Enrollment Comparable

Even with upper classmen in shorter supply, enrollment this year promises to be comparable with that of last school term at West Texas State University, according to Dr. Don Cates, registrar.

Dr. Cates said that at the close of regular registration at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon enrollment was at 6,250 students as compared to 6,504 at the same point last year, a deficit of 254.

However, he said there are several off-campus classes for which figures had not been received Saturday. Also, students registering for thesis work do so by mail and these are not included in the figures of Saturday afternoon.

Late registration is slated to run from Tuesday through next Saturday noon. Late registrants, added to thesis and off-campus students should show a comparable figure to that of final enrollment last year, Cates said.

"It may be up some and it may be down some," Dr. Cates pointed out, noting that final enrollment for the 1973-74 term came to 6,754.

"It looks like we will be in a comparable position to last year," Dr. Cates declared.

"Based on the classes that have filled, it looks like there will be more beginning freshmen this year than last year," the registrar went on.

"I'll be more pleased with an increase in freshmen than any other level because freshmen will be with us for the next four years," he stated. "This could signify a turn-around in enrollment. There was a decline in freshman enrollment four years ago and consequently we now have smaller junior and senior classes."

County commissioners vote to issue certificates of obligation

Randall County commissioners Thursday voted to issue $600,000 in certificates of obligation to build a new courthouse annex in Amarillo.

They learned, however, that the new building can legally house only the office of Randall County tax assessor-collector.

A bracket law limits to $200,000 money that can be spent in building an annex to house anything other than a tax office.

Ludicrous as the statute may appear, it provides that a county can spend up to 2 per cent of its assessed valuation to build a structure for a tax office. In Randall's case its $63,000,000 would allow the county to build a facility for the tax department alone costing $1 million plus.

To put the sheriff's department and a peace justice in the building would be unlawful. Enabling legislation to free Randall from this law will be sought in the next legislature.

Commissioners approached the vote on going ahead with the annex with trepidation.

"I don't want to do anything illegal," commented Paul Lindsey.

Commissioner John Fulgenzi suggested that the building be erected, the enabling legislation obtained and the sheriff's office and justice of the peace be moved in from the present South Amarillo Annex.

Lindsey said this might be viewed as subterfuge on the part of the court.

Commissioner Bill Butler said he thought it best to hew to the law and build the building strictly for the tax office and that when enabling legislation is obtained to move in any new offices desired adding necessary partitions.

It was after Butler's comment that the project was given a green light.

Bob Davis of Columbian Securities said $300,000 of the $600,000 in certificates of obligation deposit would be refunded through federal revenue sharing. He said $30,000 of $40,000 to be put into the project by the county would be refunded from the certificates of obligation.

Davis said the county is looking at an interest rate of from 6½ to 6¼ per cent.

He discussed two payoff schedules, one for 10 years and the other for 12 explaining that the 12-year plan would reduce the tax rate only about 1 cent while it would cost an additional $50,000 in interest.

Commissioners decided on the 10-year schedule.

Architect Art Vaughan said he will have plans in the hands of general contractors as soon as possible. Tentative date for opening bids on the facility to be erected at the intersection of Georgia and Canyon Drive on the site of the old Palo Duro drive in theater has been set for Oct. 14.

In other business at Thursday's called meeting commissioners discussed the county's proposed 1975 budget of $1,341,987 with department heads from various county offices.

The budget called for 6 per cent raises for county employees. Discussion centered principally on salaries.

Commissioners decided to discuss salaries further when it meets with Outside Auditor Bill Francis on his courthouse job descriptions and pay schedule.

Francis was slated to have met with the court Thursday but broke his wrist while playing tennis and was hospitalized.

Board sets hearing

Randall County school board in a meeting Thursday decided to hold a hearing some time in October to hear public sentiment on requests that land in the Canyon School District be ceded to the Amarillo School District.

Land specifically in question is a 50-acre tract developed by Amarillo Developer Glenn O'Dell. The tract lies just south of the Amarillo Canyon school district line.

At the meeting representatives of both O'Dell and Canyon School District will be permitted to argue their case.

Exact time and place of the hearing has not been announced.

Five residents of the tract filed suit in district court here in an effort to force a decision to allow it to be annexed by AISD.

The suit was brought against county trustees and alleged that the election of several board members was illegal, and that they be removed from the board.

The board Thursday held an executive session to discuss the pending lawsuit.

McGlasson elected chief

McGlasson was voted the honor by the 600 delegates at the annual conclave of the Order of the Arrow held at Stephenville, Texas. The section covers the northern part of Texas, all of New Mexico and parts of Colorado, Arizona and Utah.

Order of the Arrow is an honorary group based on service to scouting. Scouts are elected to the Order of the Arrow by members of their troup.

McGlasson holds the Lodge Chief position in his local Order of the Arrow Lodge. Prior to being Lodge Chief, he was administrative Vice-Chief. He is in his fourth year as a member of the Order of the Arrow.

The lodge of which McGlasson is a member covers the western Panhandle and has 400 active members.

A member of Troup 31 in Canyon, McGlasson has been in various phases of scouting for 10 years.

His primary duty will be to organize the conclave for the next annual meeting in New Mexico. He will also help plan the National Conference which will be held on the Miami University campus, Oxford, Ohio in August of this year. He stated that over 6000 are expected for the meeting.

McGlasson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene McGlasson of Canyon. He is a freshman student at WTSU.

Local man is charged with DWI

Gary Don Bednorz, age 18, pleaded Nolo Contendra to charges of driving while intoxicated following an accident Thursday night when the car Bednorz was driving ran into the side of the home of Mrs. Ray Campbell at 2400 Sixth Avenue.

Prior to hitting the house, the car struck a parked auto on the opposite side of the street. The accident occurred at about 10:37 p.m. Thursday.

Bednorz and another individual riding in the car left the scene of the accident prior to the arrival of police. Police arrested him at 12:45 a.m. at his home and took him to Neblett Clinic where stitches were required due to cuts received in the accident.

Rain aids farmers

"These have been some of the best rains for August in this area that anyone can remember," stated John Brazzil, County Agent for Randall County.

Brazzil stated that it had been a long dry spell since the spring of 1973. He stated that this is the first time farmers have had enough water to stop irrigation wells. He stated that there was an ample amount of moisture now to replenish top soil moisture.

Four inches or more have covered the Randall County area according to Brazzil. He stated that the pattern of the rain had been helpful also. He said the slow rainfall and the length of time that it took to fall was good.

He said that the rain had brought the county from a real dry period to good moisture in a short period of time.

He said that it would probably not add a lot to the 1974 agriculture income. He stated that the grain sorghum crop will be short in acreage this year. He said that the dry land farmer had not seeded due to the dry fields in spring and summer. He stated that what was planted will do well because of the rain.

The prospect of early wheat pasture looks good according to Brazzil. He said that a record amount of land was ready for sowing. He said it was only a matter of hours or days before farmers would start sowing the wheat.

The wheat crop is a rather significant crop for the area. The wheat is used to carry a large number of stocker cattle during the year. Wheat is nourishing and high in protein which makes it good for the cattle's consumption.

Ranges and pastures that have been dry are now greening up and beginning to grow. They should be ready for grazing soon. A few months ago they would not have been able to carry the cattle.

Bundle feed is doing well but not much was planted. Brazzil said that during July, the scattered showers encouraged some farmers to plant the feed. They planted in hope of the type of rain that was received during the past two weeks.

Brazzil stated that people are now optimistic.

New computer for WTSU students

"LOG" number, the irridescent scanner requests, then "PASSWORD." And once correctly in, "Welcome to the West Texas State University computer."

Beginning WTSU computer students will start their training this fall on the new DECsystem-10 computer terminals. Located in the University Complex South, the 16 beige remote terminals, about the size of a filing cabinet drawer, will give the student "nearly instantaneous turn-around" on their programs, says Dr. Philip Gensler, head of the computer information systems.

"The student's ability to learn is enhanced a great deal by the capability of the system to respond quickly," Gensler noted. "Your retention is so much higher when you get an immediate response."

The new DECsystem equipment replaces IBM equipment that the university has had for several years. The old system had nine terminals for administrative use, terminals which could not execute programs.

"The reason why we got this computer was for the students," Gensler points out. It is a time-sharing computer, "one that gives students access to it."

The terminals, "which respond to each individual user as if he is the sole user," Gensler says, can enter, execute the change programs, and can provide output on video display or as hard copy.

The terminals, weighing 56 pounds, are relatively portable, and can be connected from remote sites over a telephone through an acoustical coupler. The Computer Center is also making plans to purchase smaller models, which are the size of a briefcase and weigh approximately 28 pounds, for demonstration purposes, says Durwood Henderson, director of computer services.

Not all of the use of the new computer and its scanners is serious. To intrigue interested audiences, the university has programmed in such games as Russian Roulette, played by consecutive punches of the number "2" and the carriage return, for either the relieving "click" or the laughable "Bang, you're dead. Condolences will be sent to your relatives."

Linda Mouldenhauer, a secretary in the ... puter department of West Texas State University, looks up from her work at a terminal of the new DEC computer. Linda ... popular games that can be played on the computer but says the time and instrument are too valuable for games.

Death Penalty Needed

By ANN BROWN

Where could one find a more convincing argument for an armed citizenry and the death penalty than in the life of Pedrico Gomez Carrasco?

Only God knows when Carrasco began his career in crime. He reportedly acquired his first police record at the age of 15 for stealing. Before he was 18 he had progressed to murder. Sent to prison for 5 years, he was out in 2.

Carrasco grew to adulthood in prisons in the United States and Mexico. He was convicted on various counts of murder, mayhem, and drug running.

San Antonio police sources reported Carrasco had killed only 45 people prior to his bold escape attempt at the Huntsville prison.

The Mexico City newspaper, Novaciones, however, reported the drug czar was responsible for more than 126 murders in the narcotics war in Nuevo Laredo alone.

Apparently, the Mexican police felt the dope peddlers kill- ing each other was good for the town; they did not interfere. It is obvious Carrasco won the battle.

But eventually, the Mexican authorities did lock Carrasco up at the Jalisco State Penitentiary at Guadalajara. With their boss "safely" tucked away in prison, apparently 10 of Carrasco's San Antonio underlings decided to take over his business.

It reportedly took only 6 months for Carrasco to bribe his way out of prison with $200,000. Then another series of slaughters began.

According to Bexar County sheriff, Lt. Frank Stegall, Carrasco returned to San Antonio with a list of the 10 defectors marked for death. He boldly shot them down in bars, on the streets, in their homes — wherever he found them.

The "executioner" made no attempt to hide his activities from the police or his intended victims. Only four remained alive when Carrasco was cut down by police bullets. He went back to prison for "assault to murder," think of all the grieving mothers, widows, and orphans left in the wake of the executioner.

If a prison inmate can collect an arsenal, how could guns possibly be kept out of the hands of criminals on the loose?

The wisest gun law imaginable would only keep guns away from law-abiding people. And whose advantage would that be?

The daughter of one of the hostages in the prison library praised Carrasco as "a very intelligent person" and "very much a gentleman," who treated the "women hostages as if they were his mother or his sister."

How comforting those lofty phrases must be to the survivors of the dead hostages.

The killer whose trademark was a body riddled by bullets complained that society had not given him a break.

Carrasco claimed he was deprived. What more eloquent evidence he was depraved than the four bullets he put in the back of the woman who befriended and defended him throughout the siege?

Before any tears are shed over the power-drunk, money-mad murderer, think of all the grieving mothers, widows, and orphans left in the wake of the executioner.

News Brief

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dean Smith and daughters, Heather, 3, and Dawn, 5, were vacationing in Kansas and Oklahoma earlier in the summer. In Wichita, Kansas the Smiths visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin C. Smith, and in Sklatook, Oklahoma (near Tulsa) they visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Harms.

Even New York City has a lower crime rate than San Antonio. Authorities reported Carrasco boasted having sold $2,000 worth of heroin daily in that city between 1967-1970.

How many murders, robberies, rapes, and ruined lives are a direct result of Carrasco's drug traffic?

Would the social order have been better served if Carrasco had been executed after his first murder in 1969?

Who benefits from permissive legal decisions that return wanton killers to the streets?

timated 175 murder victims, from that boy in the San Antonio dance hall to the mother of five children in the prison library.

Every notorious criminal inspires imitators. Carrasco's exploits have already had two imitations: The jail take-over in Amarillo, and the Colorado-to-Texas murder, kidnap, rape, and robbery spree of Williams, Mangum, and Ulmer.

The mother of one of the killers said her son should never have been sent to prison; he just needed treatment because he was sick.

Isn't every mad dog sick?

The key to this whole complex universe is order. In giving directions for maintaining order after the Flood, God said, "Whoso sheds man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." (Gen. 9:6)

If that rule had been followed after Carrasco knifed the teenager in 1968, think of the lives that would have been spared.

And the murders are merely the tip of the iceberg.

A Town Of Games

By CARROLL WILSON

HOUSTON — The morning's Houston Post tells in front-page prose the story of the Brady Bunch, a band of local boys who since April have murdered, robbed and beaten for the fun of it.

Their tale, of course, pales beside the epic blood-thriller of Elmer Henley and the systematic slaughter of two dozen.

The opiate-dream-pleasure-dome bubble may exist in the minds of some in Texas' largest city. But, the bubble has burst and only hangover remains.

When flashed across television tubes 600 miles distant in the Panhandle, the Brady Bunch, the Elmer Henleys, are taken out of context, the perspective distorted.

For Houston is a town of games and the ultimate game is survival. Skip the jungle metaphors. Metaphors are to present in the familiar something which is unfamiliar. Houstonians live the metaphor of the good life. The jungle metaphor eludes them.

The visitor joins them, unwittingly and, if not that, unwillingly.

The speed limit sign represents a myth. Loaded gasoline trucks roaring along Interstate 45 are the reality.

Fifty miles before you reach the city limits, you become a participant in the game. The Highway Patrol is a myth. The hitchhiker is real.

At 55 in snarling high-speed, lane-to-lane, bumper-to-bumper traffic, you become as a myth, ignored, unseen. What if one lemming stopped, turned with hands upraised and called on his brothers to think before they dashed into the sea?

The freeway game is to survive and the speedometer needle creeps up in pursuit of that goal. To be trampled while trying to uphold the law is virtuous, heroic or crazy, depending on the law.

To hell with speed limit laws. There's the law of survival to think about.

Not all games here are of life-and-death variety. But, most work to make life somewhat less than worth living.

Getting through town is such a game.

"Lock your doors and hold your breath; we're going through downtown," is the prelude to this fear-spawned fun, the object of which is to get through the big-building area without (a) passing out from the noxious atmosphere or (b) passing out from holding your breath for 20 minutes or (c) passing out when a big black dude with razor-edged stilleto tries to climb in the passenger side at a stop light.

Natives must grin and bear it, and their games are more sophisticated.

The big game in town nowadays is the raising-your-kids game and it's a complicated affair with dubious rewards.

The game begins when the Houstonian husband and wife buy their rose-covered cottage in a nice suburban neighborhood and settle down to raise junior.

Dad, already living more than an hour from his downtown job, finds and buys a nice new house in another suburb and junior settles in with his white school friends.

Fruit basket turn-over with a new twist. The family must move about every five years to stay ahead of the leap-frogging block-busters. Farther and farther out and finally — into the sea?

The odds are against junior. No need to describe the kind of game the dopers play with kids.

The little, every-day games are microcosms of the game of life in Houston.

Go into any store or shop. The clerks, even the owners, play a game to see how much guff you'll take before you slap hell out of them.

Two million Houstonians have chosen their game and their spot to play it. They're perched on the beach and they'll be the first ones in when mankind turns lemming.

Existentialism Shapes Youth Opinions

The attitudes the young have today, the idea of individual reality and individual ethics as opposed to group ethics, can be traced to the philosophy of existentialism, says West Texas State University philosophy professor Art Johnson.

"This may in part be the cause of the 'generation gap,' the rise of a form of 'pop' existentialism that is clearly a dominant force in our culture, especially in the young," Johnson notes.

This will be the theme of "Leaders in Philosophical Thought," Philosophy 402, to be taught at West Texas State University by Johnson this fall.

"If we are to understand ourselves and our modern world," Johnson maintains, "we need some grasp of the ideas that dominate our current scene."

Philosophy 402 will examine certain key people and movements in the history of philosophy which have greatly influenced the development of Western thought, Johnson says. The major figures to be studied will be Soren Kierkegaard and Jean-Paul Satre, with reference to others. Topics to be covered are the concept of man, the nature of truth, freedom, belief and knowledge, "the human situation" and others.

"Selected works of several existentialist writers will be examined," Johnson says. "These will be compared with the works of some non-existentialists in an attempt to isolate and understand the concepts and attitudes which make this movement unique."

"Leaders in Philosophical Thought," Philosophy 402, will be taught Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10 a.m. in Room 203, Old Administration Building, on the WTSU campus.

Registration for WTSU courses will be Friday and Saturday, August 30-31, following the regular schedule. Late enrollees can register from Tuesday, September 3, through Friday, September 6, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Registrar's Office in the Administration Building.

Unusual, Fun And Exciting Courses Offered At WT This Fall

For fulfilling a career or just plain satisfying a curiosity, West Texas State University is offering a variety of unusual, fun and exciting courses this fall. And in places and times to meet its students needs.

Monday nights in Canyon will feature two "first-of-a-kind" courses in museums and American history.

Taught by new Museum Director James A. Hanson, "Museums: Philosophy and Organizations" will provide a rare academic look at museums and their operations.

In celebration of the bicentennial of the United States, two outstanding WTSU history professors, Charles Townsend and Darrell Munsell, will surprise students in "American Revolution: English and American Perspectives" with fascinating, little-known facts about the historical tides which caused a war.

Other evening courses in Canyon are designed to help businessmen increase their productivity through such curriculums as management, accounting, computer information systems and real estate; or creative individuals to expand their knowledge through oil painting, ceramics, creative writing, grammar and vocabulary building.

A wide range of education courses for teachers seeking to further their abilities or fulfill requirements are also available in Canyon and Amarillo at night. The latest techniques in Secondary Schools and Colleges" on Thursday evenings, and tips on how to more effectively deal with student groups will be incorporated in "Leadership for Sponsors of Student Organizations" in Amarillo on Monday evenings.

The scientist, professional or amateur, also has a variety of informative, challenging programs available for his interests. Advanced level courses in petroleum geology and engineering will be offered on the WTSU campus, and a study of the American Indian of the historic period, "American Ethnology 301," promises to be exciting. Meterology, astronomy and various agricultural science courses fill out the schedule.

Provocative day-time courses are not lacking this fall semester at West Texas State University for the regular student or for the individual with a little time on his hands. The effect of chemicals in foods will be investigated in "Environmental Chemistry" on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10 a.m. And the hobbyists will be able to perfect their obsessions and acquire new ones in "Creative Hobbies" on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-4 p.m. A multitude of other academic challenges are always available during the day to complete degree requirements.

Technical Writing Offered At WT

A new course, "Technical Writing," will be offered for the first time as part of the West Texas State University fall curriculum.

The course instructor, Dr. Gerald Craven, spent the summer at the University of Texas at Austin under direct supervision of the author of the book to be used in the WTSU class, John Walter.

"This course will increase a student's facility in handling various techniques of technical exposition, in writing business letters, in construction of some common kinds of reports, and in writing a long research report," Craven said.

"Any kind of student will be able to use it," he noted, "although I expect agriculture students will use it most of all."

English 399-4, "Technical Writing," is an upper division English class which will require a series of papers, including a major term paper. It will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning at 11 a.m. in the University Complex South, Room 420.

Registration for this and other WTSU courses will be Friday and Saturday, August 30-31, in the WTSU Activities Center according to the regular registration schedule. Six Saturday Seminars Offered Select High School Students Beginning September 21, West Texas State University will be offering a series of six Saturday seminars for selected area high school students.

Designed for academically-talented high school juniors and seniors, the six presentations cover a broad range of topics — from archeology to computers and future technology — and will be offered by some of the University's most distinguished faculty members.

"We want to give the students additional insights into the academic tone of the University, provide an intellectual challenge and give them something interesting to do on six Saturday mornings a year," said Dr. Theodore Freidell, dean of arts and sciences and a sponsor of the series.

Eligibility will be determined by the area superintendents. Freidell described the sessions as consisting of approximately an hour's worth of lecture, a refreshment break, and another hour's worth of informal discussion. No college credit will be given for the experience.

Opening the series will be "Early Man in the Texas High Plains," which will be a summary of the present state of knowledge of the earliest human inhabitants of the northwest Texas area. Teaching this session will be Dr. Jack Hughes, professor of anthropology, who holds his Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Completing the fall semester offerings will be "Recent Man in the Texas High Plains," taught by Dr. Frederick Rathjen, associate professor of history, on October 19, and "Man and His Music," with Dr. Matilda Gaume, professor of music, on November 16.

"If it is successful in the sense that the high school students do come and enjoy it, we will probably offer some such series every year," Freidell said.

Drivers Benefit From Course Here

Defensive driving will be stressed two evenings in September in a course to be taught by Larry McClendon of the Department of Public Safety.

The course will be held at the Canyon Community Center from 6-10 p.m. the evenings of September 9 and September 11.

Drivers participating in the course who receive certification may then apply to their insurance companies for reduced rates.

The course is open to all drivers from all age levels. Certification charge will be a nominal $1.75 and defensive driver handbooks will be 75 cents each.

Any driver desiring to enroll should call 655-9662 to be listed or stop by the Canyon Police Department by noon on September 9 to enroll. Participants must enroll as handbooks must be made available for all participants at the first session that evening.

Federated Clubs Involve Women In Affairs Of State, Nation And Community Betterment

Progressive Woman Study Theme For USC Clubwomen

"It's A Girl" is the theme for the University Study Club of Canyon for the current club year which begins Sept. 13 with a gathering of members at the home of Mrs. John Childs, president.

This year the federated club will be following a course of study about the Progressive Woman. Among programs slated will be a demonstration on art by Margaret Fletcher, a needlework demonstration by Linda Poff, various other informative discussions on the topics of Indian women, legal status of women and the metric system for the home along with a "first date party" in December where members will be entertaining their husbands.

On Oct. 13, the USC will sponsor its Home Tour raising money to be used in Canyon as the club contributes annually to the Canyon Girl Scouts, Canyon City Library Association, Canyon Babe Ruth League, Meals-On-Wheels, senior citizen needs at LaCasa Nursing Home, for public school teacher gifts, and the $150.00 scholarship given each year to a graduating Canyon High School student for attendance at West Texas State University.

The federated club is affiliated with the GFWC, TFWC and Top of Texas District of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs along with local participation in the Canyon City Federated Council.

Presently the club has 39 active members, 3 associate members and 2 honorary members. New members are gained through guest day recommendations and invitation by current club members. Yearly dues are set at $10.

A portion of club dues go alongside project funds that are given annually to the Reen Stevenson Memorial Scholarship which is a fund founded by the club through the Canyon Division of the Opportunity Plan., Inc. at West Texas State University. The OPI aids selected university students with financial aid.

For the past two years, University Study Club has been in charge of the annual Heart Fund Drive in February. The drive was resumed by USC as a project after several years of inactivity here.

A new auxiliary for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon was founded in 1972 by the membership of the University Study Club. The USC presently has over half of its own active membership involved in the auxiliary and women representing the USC currently hold the guiding offices of the museum auxiliary.

Canyon City Federated Council Guides Clubwork On Joint Events

Canyon City Federated Council has a central objective coordinating activities for the five federated clubs in the city on federated club projects conducted on a councilwide basis including the annual Federated Council Dinner.

The five federated clubs in Canyon each have two representatives on the council board who represent their own clubs including the Heritage Woman's Club, Canyon Study Club, Sue Hite Club, Woman's Book Club and the University Study Club.

The council's officers are elected by those representatives on the board and the current president is Mrs. Alma Perkins, a representative on the board from the Sue Hite Club.

Other council officers include Thelma Childs of the University Study Club as the council's vice president; Rose Kinzer of the Woman's Book Club as council secretary; and Susan Dolle of the Canyon Study Club as council treasurer. Other representatives on the council include Mildred Cannon, Virginia Allen, Nell Findley, Marian Marrs, Darlene Plank and Judy Becknell.

The federated dinner which is a councilwide project is set to be held November 4 and will involve members of all federated clubs in the city. The council is also making plans to conduct a Game Night in February 1975 from which the funds were given to the Opportunity Plan at West Texas State University last year.

"Freedom In Federation" Theme For Heritage Club

Heritage Woman's Club was federated in 1969 under the sponsorship of Canyon Study Club and this year will follow the theme "Let Freedom Ring" with the course of study being 'Freedom in Federation' according to Mrs. Jimmy E. (Marion) Marrs, president.

The federated junior club meets on the third Monday night in the homes of various members for a variety of programs which this year will include a visit with the School Board at their regular meeting in September.

Varied programs are planned for the club this year to include a discussion on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; a demonstration on the making of Indian Jewelry; a demonstration on baking bread; a discussion of Christian Ethics and Home Discipline; Pioneer Personalities discussion and program; and a discussion early next year by Jane Stephens, county Bi-Centennial Chairman, who will present a program outlining plans for the celebration here.

Socially the club this year had a bicycle treasure hunt with their husbands and ended the evening with homemade ice cream and began the fall with a style show inviting guests and prospective members in August. At Christmas, the club plans to exchange holiday goodies from their own kitchens complete with recipes and their New Year's Eve party will be a look at the past as they have a Fantastic Fifty's party planned with a look at the 1950s through records and attire of the era.

Major project for the Heritage Woman's Club has been aid to Neblett Memorial Hospital in Canyon and through the years the club has helped to purchase an isolette, new baby scales and a training projector. The club is presently contributing toward the purchase of a portable, electric defibrillator for use with emergency heart patients at the local hospital.

The major fund raising project of the club has been their annual Talent Show held in February which includes elementary and junior high students from throughout the school district.

A Community Emergency Relief Fund has been established by the club which will aid any local family when suddenly struck by tragedy. It is hoped that the fund will continue to build through the years, according to Mrs. Marrs.

Presently the club is working toward the collection of newspapers, bricks and magazines to help finance the World's of Nature Zoo being planned for Amarillo and is planning to help with 'Poll Power' a state federated club project.

Other projects for the club are the contributions made to the Texas Federation of Women's Club's Scholarship fund, the Penny Art scholarship, Latin American Scholarship and Musical Penny scholarship along with the Canyon City Library fund. Club members and their children also "trick or treat" for UNICEF, and contribute clothing to Girlstown USA.

The club also serves as a cosponsor for the Les Amies Juniorette Club for federated club activities among local high school girls, concludes Mrs. Marrs.

USC Club Year Announced Here

University Study Club announced the arrival of a new club year with an appropriate birth announcement printed on a pink and white cloth diaper closed with a safety pin in keeping with their 1974-75 theme "It's A Girl."

The birth of the club year for University Study Club will occur September 13 at 10 a.m. as members gather in the home of president, Mrs. John Childs, 1409 Creekmere, for a begin-the-year coffee.

Self-Improvement Is Study Course For Federated Club

"Out of the Many — ONE" is the theme for the Canyon Study Club as the group continues to promote self-improvement through a course of study and work toward community improvement with worthwhile projects in the 1974-75 club year, according to Mrs. Don Dolle, president.

The junior federated club was founded in 1958 and has an active role of 30 members who gather on the third Tuesday evening in member's homes. The programs this year will include such discussions, displays and film topics as the Navajo Indians, Women in Finance, Juvenile Crime Panel, the American Foreign Policy, Puritan Ethics, and Alcoholism. They will also take a tour of the Crow Art Gallery and have display programs dealing with "crafts for Christmas" and "needlecraft" during the year.

CSC will follow the Texas Federation of Women's Club as this year's emphasis is to be devoted to Girlstown, the Bicentennial Celebration and Poll Power seeking to get out 75 percent of eligible voters in the state during elections.

In addition to serving as cosponsor for the Les Amies juniorette club, the Canyon Study will serve in other community project areas including an annual scholarship for a CHS senior planning to study at West Texas State University and a special summer camp scholarship for a special education child from the junior high school level to attend Camp Wigwam. They also give funding annually to the Canyon Girl Scouts, the Little League program and the Canyon City Library Fund.

Fund raising projects of the club each year are the Halloween Carnival and the Miss Canyon Pageant.

Sue Hite Club Observing Fiftieth Year Of Clubwork

Sue Hite is planning an eventful year led by Mrs. Virginia King Allen, president; Mrs. E.E. Perkins, vice-president; Mrs. Edith Priddy, secretary-reporter; Mrs. Raymond Lumry, treasurer; Mrs. John Sommer, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. A.L. Walsh, parliamentarian.

The club's first meeting will be Sept. 23, 7:00 p.m., in the home of Mrs. R. Crews Henry at 2613 Third Avenue. This will be a salad supper.

Departments were emphasized in program planning for the year 1974-1975, each department will be responsible for sponsoring one program. This plan will involve many women in program participation, and it will afford an excellent exchange of ideas.

The departments cover a rich gamut of interests including: Home Life, Conservation, Education, Fine Arts, International Affairs, Public Affairs, and Texas Heritage. The vice-president in charge of program, Mrs. E.E. Perkins, and her committee have coordinated much material using the theme "Expanding Horizons Through Knowledge."

The year 1975 is also the Golden Anniversary of Sue Hite Club. Guest Day is planned for April 19, 1975. Two committees have worked diligently to make this a very special day.

Mrs. A.H. Prichard and her research committee are searching for the names and addresses of all women who were a member of Sue Hite at any time during the past fifty years, and we hope many of them can accept our invitation to attend the guest day meeting.

Scrapbooks and historical data are being prepared. Mrs. Virgil Henson and her committee are already busy making plans for the tea on April 19.

Sue Hite Club has three charter members who are active members today. They are: Mrs. Levi Cole, who has had continuous membership, Mrs. D.M. Foster, and Mrs. A.H. Prichard.

Guest speaker for the anniversary tea will be Mrs. Bob Lindsey of Canyon. She is very active in club work, having served as president of the Top of Texas district of Texas Federated Women's Clubs. She will discuss the accomplishments of club women in many fields of interest.

Special projects which the club will support are to be chosen later. In the past donations have been made to the City Library, Panhandle-Plains Museum, Girl Scouts, and Mental Health Association. The club will continue their cooperation with all study clubs in Canyon in sponsoring a game night to raise funds for the Canyon Division of the Opportunity Plan, Inc.

"We hope to have an interesting year of self-improvement for the members, and to have some part in community improvement," concludes the president.

All friends and relatives of the couple are invited.

Woman's Book Club To Study Women In American Writings

"Self improvement through study," "enjoyment of a social group," and "working toward betterment of the community" are the three main goals for the Woman's Book Club of Canyon which was the first of the federated clubs organized in Canyon.

Mrs. Joseph Findley is current president of the Woman's Book Club which meets on the second Wednesday of each month during the club year.

This year the club has set a program series based on the study of women in American writings from the eighteenth century to the present time, according to Mrs. Findley. These programs will be given by various members of the club.

To meet the social goal, aside from the brief time ordinarily available at each monthly meeting, three special meetings have been planned to fill the goal including the Christmas program where members ordinarily collect gifts of money and presents for the Wichita Falls State Hospital along with a money gift for the library. These gifts are considered an integral part of the Christmas gathering by members.

Other community projects which the club presently aids include Meals-On-Wheels, Opportunity Plan, Inc. at West Texas State University, and Operation Facelift. "We work not only to help these projects financially," concludes Mrs. Findley, "but to promote interest and knowledge among members and friends."

Les Amies Juniorettes Encourage CHS Students Federated Study

Les Amies junior club is an organization of girls attending Canyon High School which was founded in September 1972 under the guidance of the Canyon Study Club.

Mary Lisa McBride is currently president for the high school group which is devoted to civic affairs bettering the community.

In 1973, Heritage Woman's Club of Canyon began co-sponsoring the club which is expected to receive federated club rights in November, according to Miss McBride. Sponsors for the Les Amies are currently Mrs. Judy Becknell of Heritage Woman's Club and Mrs. Patricia Vise of the Canyon Study Club.

The Les Amies have 20 active members and meet monthly on the fourth Tuesday in homes of various members or at the community room of the First National Bank. Regular business and programs are held from September through May and members keep in touch during the summer at social affairs.

In September, the Les Amies will sponsor a fund raising car wash project. The members help with collections for UNICEF, the March of Dimes drive, and Girlstown USA (which they aided last year with a donation toward the purchase of a van). They participate in the CSC sponsored Halloween Carnival with booths to raise funds.

Programs for the group include roll calls, and various local speakers who have programs of interest to high school students. They also see films and have fashion programs along with meeting with the membership of the two sponsoring clubs during the year.

Carnival Booths Must Be Reserved

Canyon Study Club is presently working toward the annual Halloween Carnival to entertain Canyon's youngsters at "spook and goblin time."

Booth space is available for civic and social clubs of the city and university. All clubs desiring to operate a booth at the carnival should make arrangements soon for their booth space, as each year the carnival is a new project and those having space reserved in previous years must make their committment for the booths this year.

To reserve carnival booth space contact either Gayle Gray, 655-4189, or Sandra McRoberts, 655-4005. It is urged that all clubs desiring a booth make reservations as soon as possible.

Club Yearbooks

Clubwomen are reminded that yearbooks listing meetings, plans and projects for the coming club year should be furnished to the social desk of the Canyon News as soon as possible. If your club does not print a yearbook, it would be to your advantage to furnish an accurate typed list showing the dates, time and subject of meetings and where they will be held

Coaches Needed

Eighty boys have signed up to play football and flag football in the Kids, Inc. program. There is still a need for coaches.

According to Max Brummett, there is presently a need for six or more coaches for the boys football program. Anyone interested in coaching may contact Brummett.

Another area of need is the girls soccer program. Only 16 girls have signed to play soccer for the coming year. Brummett stated that girls from the first grade through age 14 are eligible to play. Girls may register to play by contacting Brummett.

Eagle Defense Good Offense Needs Work

The Canyon High School Eagles scrimmaged the Friona Chieftains Friday night in Friona and came out on top in the scoring department. The Eagles, after outscoring both scrimmage opponents, now look to next Friday night's encounter with Lubbock Monterrey.

Ron Mills, head coach at Canyon High, stated that the offense still needs to work on blocking and timing. Mills stated that there were several holes opened up for the Eagle runners but due to a time loss in receiving the ball they were unable to monopolize on the blocking.

Defensively, Mills feels that the Eagles played well against the run. He stated that they pursued and hit well. When workouts resume Monday, the coaching staff will spend much of their time working with the linebackers.

One sore spot in the Eagle defense Friday was the coverage on hook-zone passes. The Eagles were unable to respond quick enough to cover the passes.

One Friona coach pointed out that the Eagles were stopping the running attack but that the pass was a vulnerable area even though Friona could not be consistent in making yardage on pass plays.

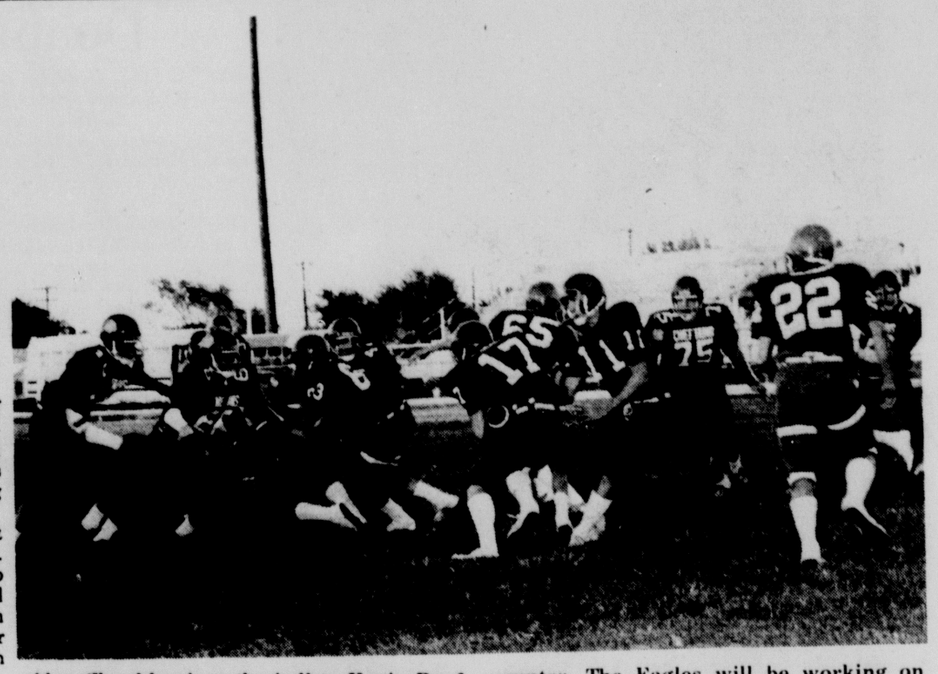
Overall, Coach Mills called Friday night's encounter a good scrimmage. Coaches were able to see areas that need a great deal of work during the contest. During the scrimmage with Denver City, it was difficult to spot weak areas because of the rain and mud. Friona was dry and playing conditions were almost perfect.

After viewing the areas of need, Mills and his staff will decide Monday what changes will be made. Some of the older boys will be moved around according to Mills.

Monday will see the Eagles at practice from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. prior to the Canyon Booster Club meeting. There will be no school Monday. The Eagles will begin looking to the Sept. 6 encounter with Lubbock Monterrey which will be played here at 7:30 p.m.

Adrian Foil and Kenny Bassinger scored two touchdowns for the Eagles during the scrimmage competition in which scores do not count. On goal line offense, Canyon again scored twice.

On goal line, the Canyon defense gave up only one TD. On goal line, the offensive team starts with the ball on the ten yard line and have four downs in which to move the ball the ten yards for a TD.



Alan Shankle gives the ball to Kevin Raef during the Friday night scrimmage with Friona. Canyon's offense was able to generate two touchdowns during the encounter. The Eagles will be working on offensive blocking and timing this week as they prepare for Lubbock Monterey Sept. 4.

Sideline Views

By JIM ROGERS

A manager's job is a thankless task. Most managers are looked on as towel pushers or water boys but there is much more to their job than meets the eye — especially a high school manager.

I admire young men who will give their time to be bossed around by coaches and players. To hear the gripes for such a poor job even if you are the only manager.

Steve Powers is to be commended for his fine work thus far this season. Steve is the manager for the Canyon High School Varsity. Steve is one of the best fans that the Eagles have. During the scrimmage last Friday, Steve identified all the players, gave nicknames and other little known facts about Eagle players.

Steve is the only manager for the varsity team. This keeps him running. Keeping water handy for the players, keeping up with elbow pads and the like and being ready to do the coaches' bidding is a busy job.

Duane Thomas, former WT football player and professional football player, was dropped this past week by the Washington Redskins. Friday night the Skins were dropped by the Pittsburg Steelers in a close contest.

Thomas has moved around and always been noted as a superstar in the pro ranks. Some have mentioned Thomas going into the WFL. Any team that will take on Thomas will probably have some of the same difficulties that other teams have had with him.

The spirit of the Eagles is running high. At Friday's scrimmage in Friona, several of the players paced the sideline and vocally spoke of the fact that they wanted to get back into the game.

Friday night, Sept. 4, the Eagles will be put to their biggest test thus far in the season — the first regular game. The Eagles will meet 4-A competition for the first time during this season. This will be the first of six such encounters.

The Eagles will not be letting down for the game but they will be ready and wanting to play.

By now fans are tired of hearing of the wet practice conditions that have faced the WT Buffaloes.

Fans are eagerly awaiting the start of the season and the first home game which will be Sept. 21 when the Buffs host New Mexico State in a conference game.

The season starts the week before when the Buffs travel to Des Moines to play Drake. The first three games of the season will be no time to get acquainted with the ability of players. The first three games will be for the Missouri Valley crown. The Buffs will know where they stand by the end of the third game of the season. This will make for rough sailing in the MVC race.

A Chieftain runner evades one Eagle tackle but faces another Canyon defensive player during the scrimmage Friday night at Friona. The Eagle defense were able to contain the Friona team and did not allow the Chieftains to score.

Cowboys Score Once

The Lafors Pirates downed the Happy Cowboys in their Thursday night scrimmage game four touchdowns to one. The bright spot of the scrimmage is that Happy did not lose any player due to injury.

Cleve Vessels, head coach at Happy High, stated that the Cowboys "looked good in places and bad in places."

The only score that Happy managed came in the second series of offensive plays for the Cowboys. They scored on a quick look pass from Terry McDonald, quarterback, to Danny Bell. The score came while the Cowboys were working on their goal line offense.

Lafors managed to score on the first series. Their other three TD's came off of three long plays. Vessels stated that he put in a freshman guard following a slight injury to his starting guard and the Pirates began to run plays over the inexperienced player. Two TD's for Lafors amassed over 50 yards each.

Vessels and his charges will go against the Claude Mustangs Friday at 8 p.m. in Claude. This game will be the opener for regular season play for both teams.

Vessels stated that the Cowboys will be working on defensive pass protection as they prepare for the game.

Next Monday evening at 7 p.m., the Booster Club will meet at the High School cafeteria. Parents are invited to take their cameras and take pictures of the various teams. Ice cream will be served to the players and members. All football teams in the school program will be present.

Membership in the booster club is open to businesses and individuals. Dues are $2 per individual, $1 for families and $25 for businesses.

Museum Team Uncovers Sites

Perhaps more than 10,000 years ago, paleolithic men roamed the plains of the Panhandle, hunting giant bison and existing only through the strength of their legs and their flint tools. Years of dirt brought by a changing climate hid the traces of them until recently, when a team of three archeologists from the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon uncovered one of their bison kill sites.

The Lake Theo site, located near Quitaque on the south rim of Holmes Creek, has proved far richer in traces of the Folsom culture Indian than other sites worked in the region.

Bill Harrison, museum curator of anthropology, and his assistants Henry Smith of Amarillo and Eddie Kiser of Canyon, both West Texas State University students, have carefully unearthed more than seven Folsom period flint artifacts, including projectile points, butchering tools and knife fragments. Two of the Folsom points are complete, while another's two neatly snapped segments were found seven feet apart. An extensive bonebed of now-extinct giant bison extends at least 115 feet back from the primary site and 60 feet wide, suggesting that the site was once the flat rim of a playa lake where bison had mired or were trapped in the gummy bottom and the kill made.

Mr. Frank Tow, amateur archologist from Amarillo, first reported the site to the museum in 1972. He had collected two Folsom point bases and several end scrapers with gravers from the eroded surface, Harrison reported. In October of 1972, the site was visited by Harrison and Ray Thompson, museum volunteer, who collected more point fragments and another end scraper, while noting vast amounts of sun-bleached bone on the surface of the site.

Reports of relic hunters looting the site in May, 1974, spurred the museum personnel to action, and an appeal to the Texas Historical Commission yielded a $4,000 grant. Work began June 21, 1974.

Now, through painstaking excavation of 23 five-foot squares of surface worked to depths of six feet on the shelf edge and eleven feet more than 100 feet back, Harrison's team has uncovered a rewarding glimpse of a prehistoric culture, the Folsom era Indian, one of the oldest known inhabitants of North America.

"In addition to a kill or butcher station," Harrison's report pointed out, "it appears that we have a habitation site."

"We really don't know much about the Folsom era Indians," Museum Director James A. Hanson said. "We know that they were nomadic hunters who travelled long distances, since there is flint in the Lake Theo site from as far away as the San Antonio area. They were also highly skilled at tool construction, and incredible hunters, for they killed these giant bison and mammoths."

The arduous descent to the bonebed began first with shovel, with the dirt being carefully sifted through screens. Once reaching approximately one foot above the bed, the men began working with small trowels, wetting the surface and then scraping off the topsoil gingerly. When they touched the top of the artifacts, they used small brushes to uncover the crumbling surfaces. Permission of Curtis Tunnell, state archeologist, has now been received to remove the initial layer of bone and flint, after grid photography and ink sketches have recorded their exact positions, so that Harrison and his team can continue their search in the layers below. The bones will be soaked in a solution of glue and water to strengthen them so that they can be moved to the museum.

The recent rains have hindered their work somewhat, Harrison laughed, by "filling up the bottom of the squares" and encouraging habitation there by snakes, rats and frogs.

"This site is so exciting because we know so little about the Folsom era man," Hanson maintained. And what is more interesting is that while "most sites are kill sites, this one is a living site where they stayed for some time. We know this because there are flint chips from making tools, and pieces of charcoal from cooking."

"These sites are rare," he concluded.

Eddy Kiser, student from Canyon, scrapes and digs at the bottom of pit in quest of bison bones and spear points. Earth is moistened by water from household spray bottle then scraped away with small trowel.

Entertainment Provided Commuting Students

Providing entertainment for the commuting students and those who only have a short time off between classes has been a problem for the Student Activities Council at West Texas State University.

This summer the Council, with the aid of the WTSU Student Association, purchased a video cassette recorder, the JCV CR-6100U. The machine, described as "the top of the line" by WTSU Programs Director Jim Holston, has the capability to record television programs for replay on conventional television sets or special monitors.

Holston plans to place the video monitor or television set in high traffic areas for the benefit of the college students who have not participated fully in SAC activities in the past.

In addition to the taped television programs, cassettes rented from the National Videotape Network will be aired. These program topics range from Bullwinkle cartoons to Alexander S — how to cheat at cards.

One of the first shows Holston plans this fall is Jim Croce in concert.

For the commuting student who is unable to drive back to campus for the traditional movies in the evening, the cassette player-recorder will provide a greater chance for participation in the entertainment and social life of the University, hopes Holston.

In the future the programs coordinator wants to set aside a room for the new unit or partition off a section of the Activities Center snack bar for the special television viewing.

The recorder model offers special features which Holston feels will make the recorder especially useful for campus operation.

When the auto level is set for repeat, the entire tape is played automatically over and over again. This allows the continuous showing of programs without requiring an operator to reset the machine.

The player records and plays back in both color and black and white, and the unit will record a program on one TV channel while the set is turned to another channel.

Banana Splits And Music Welcome Students

Classes begin Tuesday (Sept. 3) at the university, and Thursday (Sept. 5) The McCrary will be presented in a free outdoor concert. Banana splits will be served to all WTSU students with ID cards at 7 p.m. The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. north of the library.

Friday evening Johnny Rodriguez with Alvin Crow and the Pleasant Valley Boys will play at 8 p.m. in the WT Fieldhouse. Admission is free to dormitory students, $3 for WT students and $4 for the public.

To conclude the first-week-of-school celebration, Taos Lightning will play for a 7 p.m. Saturday (Sept. 7) concert on the lawn in front of the Education Building.

The McCrary, a group of three brothers and two sisters, sing a variety of music from original songs to the current popular hits to the classics of soul and blues.

Part of a family of 12, The McCrary have been singing together since childhood. An appearance on the Ted Mack Amateur Hour led to their own television show in Youngstown, Ohio, and in 1969 the group began doing college concerts with Billy Preston, Eddie Kendericks and Creative Source.

A native of Sabinal, Tex., Johnny Rodriguez began his career about four years ago when he was jailed for stealing and barbecuing a goat near Uvalde. When Rodriguez played his guitar in jail, the Texas Ranger who arrested him began to like Rodriguez's music and introduced him to his present manager.

Rodriguez worked at Alamo Village in Brackettville where he was seen by Tom T. Hall, and he was soon signed to play guitar and open Hall's shows.

In Nashville with Hall, Rodriguez obtained a record contract and has since recorded four hit singles and three albums.

Taos Lightning is a new country and rock band from the northern New Mexico area, named for the moonshine whiskey manufactured in the Taos Valley from the late 1700's to the mid-twentieth century.

The four-member New Mexico group mixes bluegrass, folk, country, jazz, rock, and rock and roll for their concert performances.
